Brutality suit goes to trial

► Woman alleging police assault had previously launched complaint over police treatment in investigation into her 2003 rape: Testimony

JESSICA
SMITH
@METRONEWS.CA

Ottawa police are facing allegations of physically and sexually assaulting a prisoner — this time in a civil trial.

Velvet LeClair, an early-childhood educator, testified yesterday Ottawa police officers arrested, handcuffed, assaulted and abused her, and called her “a mouthy little bitch.” A statement of defence filed in the case denies the allegations and alleges that LeClair assaulted police.

LeClair is suing the Ottawa Police Service, along with two arresting officers and Chief Vern White, for $50,000.

LeClair was one of six people in a Volkswagen Beetle on July 14, 2007, returning from a night at Bluesfest and the ByWard Market. The car was pulled over when one of her friends gestured obscenely to police.

Two of the friends got out to speak with police. One of them, Sandra McIntyre, was handcuffed, as LeClair also got out. She said she spoke politely to police, objecting to her friend’s arrest.

An officer told her McIntyre was being arrested for the gesture — not for an over-full car. LeClair said she told the officer he might as well arrest her because her friend had done nothing wrong.

LeClair said the officer replied, “Bitch, you just said the wrong thing to me,” under his breath, and then, loudly, “Ma’am, you’re under arrest.”

Two officers handcuffed her, wrenching her arms and shouting, “Stop resisting arrest,” while she yelled, “I’m not resisting. Stop hurting me,” she said. One cop banged her head on the cruiser, she said.

At the detention centre, she said she was walked down a long hall in handcuffs as officers said, “I’d f— her” and “I wouldn’t f— her,” as they manhandled her and then pushed her face to the ground.

Sexual comments continued while she was searched by “too many hands” groping her thighs and lower back, she said.

In cross examination, police lawyer Matthieu Charron took LeClair through some of her statements during the discovery phase of the trial about the cellblock video of her arrest.

She and her lawyer have seen the cellblock footage, and LeClair acknowledged the video appears inconsistent with her account. The video is composed of excerpts from the cellblock cameras’ footage, and the original has been destroyed, said Charron. The only parts of the video that aren’t included do not show LeClair, he said.

The trial continues today.

Call for OMB overhaul comes too late: NDP

► Liberal MPP vows to advocate for Ontario Municipal Board reform if re-elected ► NDP candidate calls Liberal promises 'typical politics'

► MPP for Ottawa Centre, Yasir Naqvi, called for OMB reform during an election campaign stop on Richmond Road yesterday.

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

Anil Naidoo, NDP candidate for Ottawa-Centre, slammed his Liberal opponent yesterday for only promising changes to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) once the election started.

At a campaign stop, Yasir Naqvi, MPP for Ottawa Centre, called for an overhaul of the OMB that would give communities a voice — something he said has been lost in all the development that occurs in his riding.

But that didn't sit well with the NDP.

"It's outrageous that during election the Liberal candidate is making a call for OMB reform, when for the past four years ... he's been silent," said Naidoo.

Naqvi told reporters his constituents are talking about much-needed OMB reform.

"It's a significant issue," said Naqvi. "I've knocked on over 30,000 doors and it's something that I hear a lot."

If re-elected on Oct. 6, Naqvi said he will introduce anti-strategic litigation against public participation (anti-SLAPP) legislation in Ontario to protect community groups.

Naidoo also criticized the OMB by saying that in its current form it cannot be allowed to continue.

"This is a 100-year-old body that is damaging our communities and our ability to plan rationally."

Meanwhile, Ottawa Centre Ontario Green party candidate Kevin O'Donnell applauded Naqvi's announcement but he also said the Liberals were being inconsistent and that they should restore municipal planning authority to green-energy projects.

Proposed changes

Yasir Naqvi's proposed changes to the OMB:

- Change Planning Act to require municipalities to adopt completed Community Design Plans into their official plan.
- Ensure decisions of city council in issues around official plans respected by OMB.
- Impose mandatory mediation in all development appeals.
- Anti-SLAPP legislation to protect community groups who speak up against development issues.

Third Wall facing a financial wall

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

Dealing with a $60,000 deficit, the Third Wall Theatre Company has announced it's cancelling its 2011-12 season to tackle its serious financial troubles.

Artistic director James Richardson said it was the most difficult decision his company has made in its 11-year history.

A reduction in grants from the City of Ottawa, low ticket sales in the last show, lost fundraising events, and lack of sponsorship opportunities contributed to the short-fall in revenue, he said.

"The saddest part was having to tell our artists, our audience that they're not going to get that experience that they get," said Richardson, who helped start the company.

Third Wall was supposed to showcase Three Sisters, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, and Checklist for an Armed Robber, but they have been cancelled.

A side series of dramatic readings called The Empty Space Series will go ahead as planned, as will an Oct. 29 fundraiser. Richardson said he will try to find alternate revenue sources, strengthen the board and consider tweaking the production schedule to save money.

He hopes productions will resume sometime between May and October 2012.

Death in break-in attempt

Ontario Provincial Police say they were on their way to a break-and-enter in progress early Sunday morning when they found a 41-year-old man dead on the property.

"We have identified that a break-and-enter in progress was interrupted by occupants of the home," OPP spokesman Const. Peter Leon said.

A post-mortem was conducted on Corey Blaskie at the Ottawa Hospital. Leon said the results of the examination were not being released yet. Leon said no charges have been laid against the homeowners in the incident and the investigation isn't finished.

► Ontario Liberals promise tax credit of up to $10,000 for businesses to train new citizens

JESSICA SMITH
@METRONEWS.CA

As political furor over the Ontario Liberal's proposed "No Skills Left Behind" $10,000 tax credit abates, immigration experts in Ottawa say it's a small step in the right direction.

"Proposals such as this have to be taken seriously, regardless of the political context because this is an urgent issue," said Adnan Türegün, executive director of the Centre for International Migration and Settlement Studies at Carleton University.

Immigrants unable to find work in their fields are "a loss for the economy, and bigger loss for the individuals and their families," said Türegün.

He welcomes the plan, but said it would be of more benefit if it were offered to immigrants before they achieve citizenship — which can take four years.

"Research shows the first three years are critical for professionals," said Türegün, adding immigrants working "survival jobs" while trying for Canadian equivalency can lose touch with current practices in their professions.

"When you are here as a permanent resident, 85 per cent of the time you are going to become a Canadian citizen, so why wait until they become citizens?" Türegün said.

Stroller has parents concerned

► Flaws in rim caused inner tube to pop ► Replacement tire and wheel had even more defects than first one, Ottawa couple says

An Ottawa couple is concerned about the safety of a popular brand of stroller after a burst inner tube gave their son and his grandparents a scare.

Alex Newcombe and Jennifer Lalonde bought a 2010 Baby Trend Expedition jogger-style stroller at Walmart for their 17-month-old son, Landon, for about $130.

Lalonde's parents were crossing a busy road near Carling Avenue when the tire popped, stopping them in their tracks.

"Her father had to hold the baby in the carriage up on two wheels instead of three to get him across the street," Newcombe said.

"We called the company. They gave us attitude, they gave us issues," he said. "They sent us a new tire (and wheel) with twice the defects of the first one. I pulled open the tire and you can see there's score marks, scratch marks, there's sharp edges (on the rim) and the entire tube is split on the brand new tire they just shipped us yesterday."

When Newcombe pulled the tire off of the new wheel, a jagged, rusty seam on the rim was visible next to the inner tube.

Baby Trend did not respond to a request for comment. ● JESSICA SMITH

An Important Notice Regarding Your Personal Health Information

This notice is being issued to help people with diabetes or at risk of having diabetes decide whether or not they want to consent to having their personal health information shared in the Diabetes Registry and the Diabetes Testing Report.

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care (MOHLTC) is working to help individuals better manage their diabetes and their diabetes care. As part of this effort, eHealth Ontario is creating and will be operating a Diabetes Registry to give health care providers the ability to easily check patient records, access diagnostic information, receive patient alerts, and track the care a patient with diabetes receives. The implementation of the Diabetes Registry is a first step towards achieving a province-wide Electronic Health Record for eligible Ontarians.

The MOHLTC currently uses the paper-based Diabetes Testing Report to keep your primary care provider (physician or nurse practitioner in a Nurse Practitioner-Led Clinic) informed of when you last had the following three key tests that people living with diabetes should receive on a regular basis:

- the HbA1C blood glucose control test, which patients should receive at least every six months
- the LDL-C cholesterol test, which patients should receive approximately every year
- a retinal eye exam, which patients should receive at least every two years

In order to create the Diabetes Testing Report, your primary care provider shares personal health information, including your name, OHIP number, and date of birth with the MOHLTC. He or she will also confirm whether you have diabetes. In response, the MOHLTC will share the most recent date for each of the three key tests with your primary care provider.

Starting in Fall 2011, eHealth Ontario will begin operating the Diabetes Registry and other Electronic Health Record applications to permit health care providers to access your name, OHIP number, date of birth, and clinical information such as procedure dates and test results, in real time, when they are providing you with health care. The MOHLTC will continue to send Diabetes Testing Reports to primary care providers until they transition to the Diabetes Registry.

Protecting Your Privacy

The MOHLTC will share your personal health information through eHealth Ontario and the Diabetes Registry with health care providers when they are providing you with health care. The collection, use, and disclosure of your personal health information by the MOHLTC and health care providers, are subject to the Personal Health Information Protection Act, 2004 (PHIPA). eHealth Ontario is also subject to PHIPA.

Your privacy is important. You may decide that you do not want your primary care provider to disclose your name, OHIP number, and date of birth, and confirm that you are a patient with diabetes, to the MOHLTC, and that you do not want the MOHLTC to include the dates of your last HbA1C, LDL-C, and retinal eye exam in your provider's Diabetes Testing Reports.

You may also withhold or withdraw your consent so that your personal health information will not be shared with health care providers through the Diabetes Registry without your express consent.

If you do not want your personal health information shared through the Diabetes Registry and/or the Diabetes Testing Report, this will in no way affect your relationship with your health care providers, who will continue to provide health care to you.

If you previously withheld or withdrew your consent from having your personal health information included in Diabetes Testing Reports, your consent will also be withdrawn from the Diabetes Registry. However, if you previously withheld or withdrew your consent from the Diabetes Testing Report, but would like your information to be accessible by health care providers through the Diabetes Registry, you will need to reinstate your consent by following the instructions set out below.

Deciding Not to Share Your Information

If you wish to withhold or withdraw your consent to having your information disclosed between your primary care provider and the MOHLTC for Diabetes Testing Reports and/or if you wish to withhold or withdraw your consent to having your personal health information accessed by health care providers through the Diabetes Registry, you may call 1-800-291-1405 (TTY: 1-800-387-5559).

If you have previously withheld or withdrawn your consent to have your information included on the Diabetes Testing Report and you do not want to participate in the Diabetes Testing Report or the Diabetes Registry, you do not need to withhold or withdraw your consent again.

If you have previously withheld or withdrawn your consent and wish to reinstate your consent to participate in the Diabetes Testing Report and/or the Diabetes Registry, you can do so by calling the number above.

More information about diabetes and the Diabetes Registry can be found at www.ontario.ca/diabetes.

Utah 'angels' save crash victim's life

► Group of strangers disregard own safety to save motorcyclist trapped under burning wreckage ► Footage of heroic rescue attempt goes viral

► In this image taken from video, a group of people tilt a burning BMW up to free Brandon Wright, on his back on the ground, who was pinned underneath after he collided with the car while riding his motorcycle on U.S. 89 in Logan, Utah.

The bystanders had to act quickly. A motorcyclist had just collided with a car and was pinned beneath the flaming wreckage.

Disregarding their own safety, they lined up on one side of the car. And slowly, they managed to lift the roughly 4,000-pound car just high enough for one rescuer to pull Brandon Wright to safety.

They are being called "heroes" and "angels" — their few minutes of heroics were captured on video and has gone viral on the Internet.

"I'm just very thankful for everyone that helped me out," Wright told The Associated Press by telephone from his hospital bed. "They saved my life."

Most of those who helped then scattered.

"Every one of those people put their lives in danger," assistant police Chief Jeff Curtis said, adding that "you can only speculate what the outcome would have been if they hadn't lifted that car."

At a hospital news conference yesterday Wright's uncle, Tyler Riggs, recounted what Wright told his family about Monday's accident. The crash happened near Utah State University in Logan, north of Salt Lake City.

Tire and skid marks on the highway showed that Wright laid the bike down and slid along the road before colliding with the car, Curtis said.

Riggs said Wright tried to protect himself by laying his bike down.

The bike hit a car's hood and bounced to the ground, while Wright, who was not wearing helmet, slid under the car and then both vehicles burst into flames, Curtis said.

The video, shot by university staffer Chris Garff who had seen the smoke, shows a crowd gathering around the burning wreckage as flames shoot into the air.

Despite not wearing a helmet, Riggs said, Wright had suffered no head trauma.

Bus driver makes fatal miscalculation

► 269 died in train-related accidents in Buenos Aires last year ► Project to move tracks underground delayed

A bus driver gambled and tried to rush across railroad tracks yesterday despite a barrier, bells and flashing lights, setting off a chain-reaction collision with two trains that killed 11 people and injured hundreds in Argentina's capital.

The accident, captured on video, came as little surprise to many in Buenos Aires, where 440 people and 165 vehicles were hit by trains last year, causing a total of 269 deaths.

In this accident, the bus got halfway across the first track before an oncoming passenger train crushed it against a concrete station platform. The collision forced the train's first two cars off the rails and into another locomotive.

The bus driver was killed, and 212 injured, including about 20 people in critical condition, said Alberto Crescenti, director-general of Argentina's emergency medical system.

The collision happened at 6:15 a.m. during the busy morning rush hour in the Flores neighbourhood. Children were among the injured, according to officials.

Taliban hits Kabul

► Violence a stark reminder of instability that still plagues Afghanistan nearly a decade after U.S. invasion

Taliban insurgents fired rocket-propelled grenades, heavy machine guns and assault rifles at the U.S. Embassy, NATO headquarters and other buildings in the heart of the capital yesterday while suicide bombers struck police buildings in an attack blitz that displayed the ability of militants to bring their fight to the doorsteps of Western power in Afghanistan.

The co-ordinated assaults — coming two days after the United States marked the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11 terror attacks — carried an unsettling message to Western leaders and their Afghan allies about the resilience and reach of the Taliban network.

It was the third major attack in Kabul since late June, casting fresh doubts on the ability of Afghans to secure their own country as the U.S. and other foreign troops prepare to withdraw by the end of 2014.

The American Embassy and NATO both said no staff were wounded. Afghan officials said the violence around Kabul resulted in the deaths of four police officers and two civilians. Another 12 people were wounded, including at least four caught up in suicide bombings in the western part of the capital.

Tories' doctor-turned-MP urged to oppose asbestos or turn in licence

Asbestos victims' relatives are asking a Conservative MP to hand in her medical licence if she won't take a stand against her party's support for the controversial industry.

An open letter signed by more than 40 people who have lost loved ones was sent Monday to rookie Ontario MP Kellie Leitch and obtained by The Canadian Press.

It goes further than a letter sent this summer from medical colleagues who noted that Leitch, having taken the Hippocratic oath, has an ethical duty to place health above any other consideration.

U.S. poverty rate soars to 1 in 6

► 50 million Americans go without health coverage, report reveals

The ranks of America's poor swelled to almost one in six people last year, reaching a new high as long-term unemployment left millions of Americans struggling and out of work. The number of uninsured edged up to 49.9 million, the biggest in more than two decades.

The Census Bureau's annual report released yesterday offers a snapshot of the economic well-being of U.S. households for 2010, when joblessness hovered above nine per cent for a second year. It comes at a politically sensitive time for President Barack Obama, who has acknowledged in the midst of a re-election fight that the unemployment rate could persist at high levels through next year.

The overall poverty rate climbed to 15.1 per cent, or 46.2 million, up from 14.3 per cent in 2009. The official poverty level is an annual income of $22,314 US for a family of four.

Reflecting the lingering impact of the recession, the U.S. poverty rate from 2007-2010 has now risen faster than any three-year period since the early 1980s, when a crippling energy crisis amid government cutbacks contributed to inflation, spiraling interest rates and unemployment.

Measured by total numbers, the 46 million now living in poverty is the largest on record dating back to when the census began tracking poverty in 1959. Based on percentages, it tied the poverty level in 1993 and was the highest since 1983.

The median household income was $49,445 US, down 2.3 per cent from 2009.

The latest numbers, which cover Obama's second year in office, offer political fodder for both parties as Obama seeks to push a new $447-billion US plan for creating jobs and stimulating the economy.

Canada's income gap widening faster than peers'

Canada is rapidly catching up to the United States as a country divided between haves and have-nots, according to a study issued yesterday by the Conference Board.

The Conference Board says income inequality has been rising more in Canada than in the United States since the mid-1990s, and faster than in many peer countries.

In fact, the think-tank says Canada had the fourth-largest increase in income disparity among a sample group of 17 advanced economies in the period between the mid-1990s and the late 2000s.

"Even though the U.S. currently has the largest rich-poor income gap among these countries, the gap in Canada has been rising at a faster rate," said Anne Golden, the board's chief executive.

Overall, income inequality rose in 10 of the countries sampled, rising fastest in Sweden, Finland and Denmark.

Fraud convictions upheld in Livent case

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

► Livent co-founder Garth Drabinsky

Disgraced impresarios Garth Drabinsky and Myron Gottlieb, whose company Livent Inc. was once the toast of the Canadian theatre scene, remain guilty of fraud but will serve shorter prison terms, Ontario's highest court has ruled.

The Ontario Court of Appeal upheld the fraud convictions handed down by a lower court in 2009, but trimmed their jail time by two years each — Drabinsky must now serve five years behind bars, and Gottlieb four years.

The two were convicted after Ontario court Judge Mary Lou Benotto found that during a nine-year span they manipulated the income reported by Livent, once the driving force behind Canadian and Broadway theatre hits like The Phantom of the Opera and Showboat.

At the time of their trial, Benotto imposed a sentence that took into account the magnitude of the company's collapse — it was estimated at the time that investors lost some $500 million when the company went bankrupt in 1998.

students, Dr. King was No. 1 above Benjamin Franklin and even Oprah, the only living admirable person who made the list. On survey after survey he's right up there with Gandhi, Nelson Mandela and Winnie the Pooh (even though he is a bear of very little brain, OK?)

If your list started with Jackie Kennedy Onassis, you're eligible for therapy. She was probably the most notorious woman of her generation, but hardly the most admired. True, as U.S. first lady, she put up with serial adulterer John Kennedy until he was assassinated. But when she married Aristotle Onassis, the creepy Greek shipping magnate, she became an object of cynical disdain, especially when, once widowed, she launched a two-year legal battle to extract $26 million out of Christina Onassis, Ari's daughter and sole heir.

Here's an ironic historical footnote. Recently released interview tapes reveal that when she was first lady, Jackie thought King was "tricky" and "phoney" because the FBI caught him with a woman in his hotel room.

This was before it became apparent that "John Kennedy Slept Here" was a whole different story than "George Washington Slept Here."

It's not really fair to judge Jackie with the benefit of hindsight, but that tricky phoney has his own national holiday, Martin Luther King boulevards in every

U.S. 'burg and more than 10,000 (and who knows the degree to which his fame extends to hamlets) public schools, community centres and libraries.

Jackie has the reservoir in Central Park, although once again I'm being unfair. She is also memorialized in a white gazebo in Middleburg, Va., where she often participated in the bizarre practice of inducing hounds to chase and tear apart a fox.

I'm not sure why Jackie O. was oblivious to greatness, although I harbour graceless suspicions. Give her the benefit of the doubt and take the "tricky phoney" talk at face value. After all, if he was discovered in a hotel room with another woman in 2011, King would make an entirely different list, along with Arnold Schwarzenegger, Eliot Spitzer and the much-admired Anthony Weiner, not to mention Jackie's husband JFK, who brought a whole new meaning to "affairs of state."

The times, they are a changin'. And through it all, Winnie the Pooh remains devoted to Christopher Robin.

What's killing us? For decades, global health leaders have focused on diseases that can spread — AIDS, tuberculosis, new flu bugs. They pushed for vaccines, better treatments and other ways to control germs that were only a plane ride away from seeding outbreaks anywhere in the world.

Now they are turning to a new set of culprits causing what United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon calls "a public-health emergency in slow motion." This time, germs aren't the target: We are, along with our bad habits like smoking, overeating and getting too little exercise.

Next week, the UN General Assembly will hold its first summit on chronic diseases — cancer, diabetes, and heart and lung disease. Those account for nearly two-thirds of deaths worldwide, or about 36 million. In the United States, they kill nearly nine out of 10 people.

"The common belief that cancer is a problem of rich countries is a misconception," said Dr. Eduardo Cazap, president of the Union For International Cancer Control.

A 290-pound man goes to White Castle

A man is suing the White Castle chain, claiming the booths in one of its hamburger restaurants are too small.

Martin Kessman says in the federal lawsuit filed last week that he was embarrassed in 2009 when he tried squeezing his six-foot, 290-pound frame into the seating at a White Castle in New York state.

He says he slammed his knee into

The lawsuit claims the restaurant could not accommodate a customer of Kessman's stature, in violation of the

The suit seeks an unspecified financial judgment.

Spokesman Jamie Richardson at White Castle headquarters in Columbus, Ohio, says the restaurant is being replaced and that the new one will have roomier seating.

Dog days of summer

► The man behind remake of Straw Dogs, Rod Lurie, speaks to Metro about its significance

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

The year 1971 was a watershed time for new cinema. Films like A Clockwork Orange, Dirty Harry and Straw Dogs pushed the boundaries of what was acceptable on the silver screen. None are passive films.

Each brims with the obsessions of their makers, and for that each was the subject of controversy and censorship.

Eventually they became accepted by the mainstream. A Clockwork Orange has become a cultural touchstone, with everyone from Lady Gaga to David Bowie to Kylie Minogue, who dressed in a black bowler hat and a white jumpsuit on tour in 2002, paying tribute.

It was even played at the Cannes Film Festival and released on Blu Ray to mark its 40th anniversary. Dirty Harry is on constant rotation on television and Rod Lurie's remake of the Sam Peckinpah film Straw Dogs hits screens this weekend.

The movie stars James

ROD LURIE

Marsden and Kate Bosworth as David and Amy Sumner, a big city couple who move back to her hometown on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Tensions with some of the locals (including True Blood's Alexander Skars-gård) bubble to the surface and soon boil over into violence.

"If you look at a movie like Straw Dogs, which was heavily influenced by a book called The Territorial Imperative," says Lurie, "Peckinpah seems to be saying that violence is in the genetics of all men and therefore we must be aware of it so we can control it. It was extremely fascist thinking but that also seems to be the thing with Dirty Harry."

"A Clockwork Orange is a much more clinical look at that but I think artists were trying to provide the answers to what society was asking then. It was a very, very violent era.

"This was an era in which people were searching for answers to the madness that was going on around them," Lurie continues, "and filmmakers were trying to provide some of the answers. You had everything from the assassinations of Kennedy and King to Vietnam to the Whitman murders to My Lai. I think all of society was trying to understand how human beings could do such things."

Aniston and Dow were on the outs for many years, with the actress not even inviting her mother to her 2000 wedding to Brad Pitt, though they reportedly reconciled in 2008.

French food, culture await in St. Pierre & Miquelon

PHOTOS: MIKE WERT, THE CANADIAN PRESS

► The islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon offer a taste of France, just a short ferry ride off the coast of Newfoundland

This tiny collection of islands, about 25 kilometres from Fortune, N.L., has a total population of around 7,000 people. It is all that remains of colonial New France.

A former strategic land base for the once lucrative cod fishery, the French government now pays about $65 million a year in subsidies to sustain the islands — its only toehold in North America. St. Pierre and Miquelon were returned to France in 1815 after several stints of British occupation.

Today, residents speak French, deal in Euros and rely heavily on government jobs, fishing and tourism.

The smallest of the islands, St. Pierre, is also the most populated, with colourful clapboard homes on tidy, winding streets that are home to about 6,000 people. Restaurants and bakeries bustle with foreigners in summer.

History buffs won't want to miss the L'Arche museum in the centre of town, where a guillotine similar to one used in 1889 is housed. The eerie killing machine is on display next to the museum's main staircase. The only soul to die by guillotine in North America was a fisherman convicted of murdering a fishing boat captain. He was beheaded in St. Pierre on Aug. 24, 1889.

It is said that local people were so disgusted the guillotine was never used again.

On the lighter side, visitors can also soak up rich tales of rum-running and gangsters, as St. Pierre became the ideal base for booze shipments to a very thirsty North America during Prohibition in the 1920s.

The North American alcohol ban was a bonanza for the fishing town until Prohibition ended in the United States in 1933. Dry laws were repealed in most of Canada several years earlier, depending on the province.

"A lot of people earned a lot of money during those years in St. Pierre and Miquelon," said Lauriane Detcheverry, a spokeswoman for the L'Arche museum.

"But in St. Pierre it wasn't illegal. People selling alcohol here weren't doing something wrong."

Some of the island's most oft-told yarns hail from those heady days.

Just down the street from the museum is the historic Hotel Robert where, according to local lore, Al Capone stayed during a visit to check on liquor shipments.

In a glass cabinet in the gift shop sits a straw hat that Capone apparently left as a souvenir of his presence.

"It may be Al Capone's hat, but it's difficult to say if it's really true or not," says Detcheverry. "But we like to believe that history, of course."

In Miquelon, with a permanent population of about 700 people, the church L'Eglise de Miquelon tells local history in its stained glass windows.

"It's worth a visit because it's so beautiful," Madeline Fitzsimmons of Huntsville, Ont., said during a trip last month to the islands.

► For dedicated beer lovers, fall conjures up images of Oktoberfest
► Here are some North American parties you won't want to miss

Attending Oktoberfest in Munich, Germany — the biggest beer festival in the world (this year Sept. 17-Oct. 3) — involves distance, time and expense. Fortunately for those whose budgets and schedules preclude the trip, there is plenty to do — and drink — in North America during the fall beer festival season.

Check out these odes to the original Oktoberfest on our own continent.

Oktoberfest Zinzinnati

Location: Cincinnati, Ohio
Dates: Sept. 17-18

The southern Ohio city gives a nod to its German roots with this festival. It bills itself as America's largest Oktoberfest, with half a million attendees. There's a full weekend of festivities, starting with the fifth annual Running of The Weiners at noon on Sept. 16, where dachshunds run in complete hot dog regalia (costumes provided). For humans, there's a beer stein race and beer barrel roll. The actual beer festival, which is sponsored by Samuel Adams, begins Saturday when a parade of German-Americans wearing traditional garb taps the kegs.

Oktoberfest by the Bay

Location: San Francisco, Calif.
Dates: Sept. 30 - Oct. 2

Oktoberfest by the Bay, Sept. 30 to Oct. 2, San Francisco. This festival features sizzling oompah music, native dancing and of course, beer. Entry is split into sessions, either day or night. Tickets are $25 for any session, but that only covers your admission. VIP tickets for $65 include a buffet and a beer. Most beers are $6 and food ranges from $3 to $11. The final day of the event marks the 122nd anniversary of German Day in San Francisco.

Kitchener-Waterloo Oktoberfest

Location: Kitchener-Waterloo, Ont.
Dates: Oct. 7 - 15.

This Oktoberfest bills itself as Canada's great Bavarian festival — an event that celebrates the region's German heritage with sausages, oompah music and a great deal of beer. Now in its 43rd year, the annual suds-silling extravaganza is one of the top 10 Oktoberfests outside of Germany. Check out Oktoberfest Idol, the vintage autos at the car show, or take part in an 1890s Thanksgiving.

DARREN PARKMAN

► Bodo Sandhills gives visitors the chance to uncover a piece of history.

Down and dirty in Bodo, Alberta

THE TRAVELLIN' CANADIAN

DARREN PARKMAN

TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA

Tourists may be flocking to Drumheller to witness the wealth of ancient dinosaur bones, but another rural Alberta archaeological site is raising eyebrows these days.

I was just a tad apprehensive on my way out to the middle of nowhere somewhere near Wainright, Alta., I think, to visit the even smaller and even more out-of-the-way tiny hamlet of Bodo. The official population base is listed at "about 27 people." This place makes Moose Jaw seem like a metropolis.

Not long after arriving in the flat, almost desert-like terrain, I was struck by the history, and the unique hands-on experience of uncovering that history.

More and more tourists are flocking here to get there hands dirty at an ancient Native burial ground.

Just a five-minute drive from the town, if you want to call it that, is the beautiful and unique Bodo Sandhills. The mosquitoes were pretty unbearable, but I forgot about my 900 or so bites when we actually had a chance to dig at a large ancient buffalo kill site.

This is the exact area where First Nations people trapped and killed their food, hundreds of years ago, and all around is the evidence. Just a few inches under the ground are thousands and thousands of well-preserved Bison bones.

What makes Bodo so great is that it allows the stunned layman to at least pretend he's a great explorer and famous archaeologist.

Other things to do

- Tee off at the Wainright Golf Club: A great 18-hole golf course with a first class club house for dining.
- Take a day tour from Canmore: See the Rockies in style or take in picturesque Lake Louise.

Good things come in packets

- Shiitake mushrooms and fresh thyme complement salmon
- Serve with white wine and lemon wedges
- Omega-3 fatty acids have never been this tasty

THE CANADIAN PRESS

► Rice and salmon packets can be cooked on the grill or in the oven. Makes 4 servings.

Whether grilled on the barbecue or cooked in the oven, these packets are ideal for entertaining. They can be prepared in advance, refrigerated and cooked just before serving. Steaming the ingredients in the packet infuses the flavours, creating a mouth-watering taste.

Rice and Salmon Packets

Preparation:

- 1 Preheat oven to 230 C (450 F). Or preheat barbecue to high.
- 2 Cut 4 pieces of parchment or foil into 30-cm (12-inch) squares.
- 3 In a large skillet, melt butter over medium heat. Add green onions and garlic; cook until fragrant, but not browned, about 1 minute. Add mushrooms, fennel and thyme and cook until mushrooms are golden, most of the liquid has evaporated and fennel is tender crisp.

- 4 Spread 125 ml (1/2 cup) of the rice on one side of a sheet of parchment. Lay a portion of fish over rice, top with a quarter of the mushroom-fennel mixture and sprinkle with coarse salt and fresh cracked pepper. Repeat with remaining portions.
- 5 Seal packages and place on a rimmed baking sheet. Bake in oven until puffed and golden, about 8 minutes. To cook on the barbecue, place packets on a rimmed baking sheet and place on grill over direct heat. Close lid and cook for about 8 minutes.
- 6 Serve in paper packet or carefully transfer contents to a dinner plate. Serve with lemon wedges.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shopping List:

Rice and Salmon Packets

- 15 ml (1 tbsp) butter
- 4 green onions, white parts only, sliced (reserve greens for garnish)
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 250 g (8 oz) shiitake mushrooms thickly sliced
- 1/2 small fennel bulb, sliced
- 5 ml (1 tsp) minced fresh thyme
- 500 ml (2 cups) cooled, cooked brown rice
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) each coarse salt and fresh cracked pepper
- 4 fish fillets (each 125 g/4 oz), such as salmon, halibut, cod or Arctic char
- Lemon wedges

You'll finally want to be in the picture.

Celebrate all that's environmental

► Eighth annual Ottawa EcoFair is Saturday at Carleton Fieldhouse ► Admission is free

This year's Ottawa EcoFair promises to be bigger, better and more fun than ever, with upwards of 6,000 visitors expected to come out and celebrate everything green and environmental, says Jill Sturdy, the event co-ordinator.

This year's highlights include a beer sampling sponsored by Eastern Ontario Breweries, a fashion display showcasing locally designed clothes and accessories made of recycled and reused materials, and yoga demonstrations where you can learn different postures, and breathing and meditation techniques, says Sturdy.

Want to learn how to live entirely on renewable energy? Come and hear tips from green economy educator and filmmaker David Chernushenko. And learn about what energy approaches best combine prices and clean air from Ecology Ottawa reps.

There will be a special area for kids that will have lots of fun activities — inflatable rides and even yoga for youngsters — but also an educational component. For example, youngsters can learn how worms contribute to composting.

► Take the entire family out this Saturday to enjoy the eighth annual Ottawa EcoFair at the Carleton Fieldhouse.

One of the most popular attractions is the Proudly Ontario lunch with local chef Toni Kadamani performing his culinary wizardry with local products and flavours.

Included on the menu are: Marinated local vegetable salad (see recipe), Ontario fruit, Sudbury barbecue sausage, Mississauga grain-fed chicken breast burgers, and more

Time and place

► The eighth annual Ottawa EcoFair is being held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Carleton University Fieldhouse. Admission is free. The Fieldhouse is located north of the main recreation building in the Department of Athletics and Recreation. Carleton University is located at 1125 Colonel By Dr.

Marinated local vegetable salad

Ingredients:

- 5 litres boiling water
- 575 g cauliflower, cut into ½-inch florets
- 600 g broccoli, cut into ½-inch florets
- 100 g fresh carrots, peeled, ¼-inch bias cut

- 15 ml pure canola oil
- 110 g fresh red onions, ¼-inch slices
- 400 g fresh zucchini, ¼-inch bias cut
- 30 ml fresh basil leaves, chopped
- 15 ml fresh cilantro, finely

- chopped
- 125 ml canned roasted red peppers, drained, cut in strips
- 15 ml sesame seeds
- 5 ml salt
- 2 ml ground black pepper
- 45 ml balsamic salad dressing

A recipe for Toni Kadamani's marinated local vegetable salad.

Preparation:

- 1 In boiling water, blanch florets of cauliflower, broccoli, and carrots for two minutes; strain and cool under cold running water.

- 2 In smoking hot pan, sear sliced red onions and zucchini in canola oil for about a minute; remove from pan and place in bowl.

- 3 Add fresh chopped basil, cilantro, red peppers, sesame seeds, salt, and pepper; mix well, cover with plastic and refrigerate.

- 4 Add balsamic salad dressing just before serving. Serves 10.

Help a wish come true

A special partnership at the Ottawa EcoFair will help make dreams come true for some of the region's critically ill children.

From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, volunteers from Make-A-Wish Eastern Ontario and 1-800-GOT-JUNK Ottawa will set up in the parking lot outside Carleton University's Fieldhouse to accept e-waste, including monitors, computer parts and electronics components.

For a minimum donation of $5, people can dispose of their e-waste in an environmentally safe way.

The Ottawa 1-800-GOT-JUNK franchise, started in 2000 by Pierrette and Luc Raymond, is an ongoing success.

"I think our partnership at EcoFair is wonderful," says Pierrette Raymond. "It raises money and public awareness of the Make-A-Wish Foundation, and it gives people an opportunity to dispose of their e-waste in an environmentally friendly way."

The recycling-for-charity event at the Ottawa EcoFair is limited to e-waste — large televisions and household appliances, such as refrigerators and stoves, will not be accepted.

Chin up during co-op hunt

STUDENT VOICE

SHABDIT SHAH
TALENTEGG.CA

When I first heard about co-operative education programs offered at universities, I immediately figured that the work-study cycle would be an excellent way to gain exposure to the professional world.

All throughout my first year I was looking forward to working at a job related to what I was studying. As my first work term approached, I quickly realized how difficult it would be, especially since my faculty is the smallest on campus and I am competing with students in their upper years.

When I started searching for my first co-op position, there were lots of job postings available but out of the many positions I applied to, I only managed to obtain one interview out of that first cycle.

My search did not get any easier in the second job posting round, as the job postings became scarce and my chances at securing employment slim.

After countless cover letters and resumé modifications I received another two interviews, both which did not lead to a work placement. My struggles continued well into exam period last December and eventually the term ended.

As I was packing my belongings for the winter holidays I realized I had nowhere to work for my first co-op term.

Near the end of January I was able to secure employment through the university job search portal for a position I applied for several weeks back.

My first co-op job search in university taught me that previous experience (especially relevant experience) really counts and sometimes volunteer work doesn't cut it.

Employers should realize that students who are trying to secure their first work term placements are part of the pool that they will be selecting candidates from for the next couple of years as well. Don't rule students out when you see a lack of work experience on their resumé.

Students may not always have relevant work experience, but they may have other relevant volunteer experience instead.

Give the fresh undergrads an opportunity to develop and enhance their skills.

TALENTEGG.CA, CANADA'S ONLINE CAREER RESOURCE FOR STUDENTS AND RECENT GRADS, WANTS TO HEAR YOUR STUDENT VOICE. SHARE IT AT TALENTEGG.CA.

What I learned

Key take-aways from Shabdit's experience:

- Gain relevant experience in your field to be taken seriously by employers
- Clearly highlight how your extra-curricular activities gave you transferable skills applicable to your job
- Stay motivated — persistence and hard work pays off!

Just Google it: Today's student

► We're getting lonely over here!

Somewhere within the stacks of a campus library, a librarian sits and waits, longing for someone to seek her help.

She'll be waiting for a while.

According to a recent study by Ethnographic Research in Illinois Academic Libraries Project, students are turning more to Internet search engines and less to physical research.

The three-year study consisted of interviews with librarians, students and other campus faculty at five universities. They found that students often don't know where to turn when it comes to doing real research within the library. In fact, students prefer to just enter a few key words into a search engine rather than pour through academic journals and encyclopedias.

The concept of using a librarian for academic assistance is apparently foreign to the modern student, researchers told USA Today.

The researchers said they were surprised by "the extent to which students appeared to lack even some of the most basic information literacy skills that we assumed they would have mastered in high school."

Apparently, students mentioned Google 115 times during the interviews for the study, more than twice as many times as any other research method.

Students aren't completely to blame, though, for their lack of library prowess. Researchers also point the finger at librarians for overestimating students' knowledge of research techniques, often resulting in conversations that leave students feeling intimidated.

I'm currently working at General Electric, and it has been a great experience thus far. SABOTAGING A WORK SUIT

WORKPLACE LAW

DANIEL LUBLIN
DAN@CANADA
EMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM
TWITTER: @DANLUBLIN

Employees are often the authors of their own misfortunes at work. Few take advantage of laws that are construed in their favour. Fewer will challenge their employer's decisions, however unjust. Most will just complain. But, if you have an inclination to fight back, here are some dos and don'ts:

Skeletons

Just about every employee has a skeleton in their closet. If yours is so bad you can't risk it being exposed, then do not challenge your employer's decision to discipline or dismiss you, however unfair. Some workplace skeletons, although not harmful to your case, will ultimately be harmful to your career.

Condonation

Many good cases die on the vine because of a delay in mounting an appropriate response. If you disagree with an employer's decision, such as a pay cut or demotion, you must immediately protest it and do so in writing. Failing to respond simply conveys to your employer that you agreed with the decision or at least that you did not care enough to complain.

Allegations

Few employees can afford to wait years to settle a case. Many of these cases would have settled quickly but for trumped up allegations of bad faith or mistreatment. When you name names in a lawsuit, you motivate your employer to vigorously defend it. In my experience, too many employee-side lawyers mistakenly aggrandize claims and then later regret it.

Hypocrites

Many cases turn sideways when the conduct you complain of is similar to what you have done. In one recent bullying case, the judge found that although the employee had been bullied at work, she had previously bullied her own colleagues. Although her claim for bullying was legitimate, she was denied damages because she had engaged in the very same conduct that she had complained of. Do not expect any sympathy for your grievances if you do not make them with clean hands.

In the year 2031...

► What does the future hold for the working world?

We asked Rohit Talwar, CEO of forecasting firm Fast Future, for a report 20 years in advance. Hint: Start working on your farming skills now.

Congrats to Apple University, class of 2031?

"School funding will be a huge issue because of the booming costs of looking after retirees. That's why companies will sponsor schools. In developed countries, the barrier between business and education will be blurred. Everything will be commercial and sponsored. If kids go to a school sponsored by a particular company, they might have to work for that company during the school breaks."

Bad news for bank tellers, good news for nurses

"Bank tellers will essentially disappear by 2031, as will

► Those who study geriatrics may have little to worry about 20 years down the road.

forms of transport and technology-based education."

Fashion and retail get a makeover

"3D printing will revolutionize manufacturing. Customers will be able to walk into a shop and design their own clothes, which will be manufactured on the spot. That will create new jobs, too."

In the classroom

"By 2031, education will have changed enormously, especially in developing countries. Technology will act as a teacher. There will be a teacher, but he or she will be many miles away."

"Teachers will be a luxury. We'll pay heavily for the specialization they provide, as technology can take care of most of the teaching."

NBA optimism low as talks stall

The long looks on players' faces and the anger in deputy commissioner Adam Silver's voice made it obvious: There was no progress in New York yesterday in talks to end the NBA lockout.

And with less than three weeks until training camps, the latest setback may be a tough one.

"I think coming out of today, obviously because of the calendar, we can't come out of here feeling as though training camps and the season is going to start on time at this point," players' association president Derek Fisher of the Lakers said.

Still divided over the salary-cap structure, owners and players decided to pass on talking again today, and no further meetings are scheduled at this point.

"Well, we did not have a great day, I think it's fair to say that," commissioner David Stern said. "On the other hand, we did say that it is our collective task to decide what we want on the one hand on each side, and two, what each side needs if we choose to work ourselves in such a way as to have the season start on time. That's still our goal."

Training camps have been expected to open Oct. 3 and the regular season's opening night is scheduled for Nov. 1.

Stuck on the cap

The salary cap appears to now be the biggest obstacle to a new NBA deal.

The current system allows teams to exceed the cap ceiling through various exceptions if they are willing to pay a luxury tax, giving big-market teams such as the Lakers — who can take on added payroll — an advantage over the little guys.

Rays of hope in wild-card race

▶ Tampa Bay surging toward AL's final playoff spot as Boston struggles

It's already October for the Tampa Bay Rays, who have switched into playoff mode in a late push to overtake the sagging Boston Red Sox for the AL wild-card spot.

After losing four of five, Tampa Bay trailed the Red Sox by nine games on Sept. 2. The Rays have since gone 8-1 and entered play last night within three games of a Boston club staggering toward the finish.

The key was a three-game sweep of the Red Sox over the weekend, capped by a 9-1 rout on Sunday.

"Everyone has stepped up and contributed to this run," Rays designated hitter Johnny Damon said. "Now we have to keep it going."

Tampa Bay kept the momentum going Monday night by beating the last-place Baltimore Orioles 5-2. The atmosphere in Baltimore was anything but electric, but the Rays played as if it was the World Series.

"We already started the playoffs," Tampa Bay manager Joe Maddon said. "We're going for the two-month gig. ... There's no letting up. Every game from our perspective has a play-off atmosphere attached to it. That's the way it should be, and that's the way we have to approach it."

There's no need to preach that philosophy to the players, who are well aware of the situation.

"These games (against the Orioles) are just as important as the ones we just played and the ones we're going to be playing," Damon said.

The Rays close out the three-game series tonight before heading to Boston for four games against the Red Sox, who had a five-game losing streak through Monday. Then come four games at Yankee Stadium, followed by the final home-stand: Three games versus Toronto and three against New York. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sports in brief

Former World Series MVP Manny Ramirez, who retired this year amid allegations of banned-substance use, is facing criminal prosecution on charges he hit his wife during an argument. Ramirez, 39, could get up to a year in jail if convicted of misdemeanor domestic-battery charges. He was released on $2,500 US bail yesterday after spending the night in the Broward County Jail in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Monster engine

The Dodge Charger SRT8's potency has been significantly enhanced for 2012.

The previous 2010 SRT8 (a 2011 version was never offered) generated 425 horsepower and 420 pound-feet of torque from a 6.1-litre "Hemi" V-8.

What's now being served up is a 6.4-litre Hemi that produces 470 horsepower and 470 pound-feet of torque.

What's more, a significant amount of that torque kicks in below the 3,000-r.p.m. range to help enhance the car's off-the-line scoot.

Hustle and (gas) flow

The SRT's development team will brag that the chunky 1,985-kilogram Charger can hustle to 60 m.p.h. (96 km/h) from a dead stop in "the high four-second range" and is capable of a 280 km/h top speed.

To try to keep the SRT8's premium-gas habit within an acceptable range, the engine uses Chrysler's latest deactivation technology that cuts out half the cylinders over a wider r.p.m. range for an estimated 25 per cent increase in highway fuel economy (8.0 l/100 km, est.).

Brembo brakes

Perhaps the most obvious SRT8 feature is its very distinctive 20-inch (and nine-inch-wide) polished aluminum wheels that really set this beast apart from mainstream Chargers.

To haul the big, bad Dodge down in a hurry, there are front and rear Brembo-brand four-piston brake calipers and a special underbody ducting that help keep the brakes cooler and more fade-resistant.

► Well ... what else are you going to do with 470 horsepower? Exaggerated looks and exaggerated power leads to exaggerated tire smoke.

A 21-gun salute to a bygone era

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

Into this eco-minded age of milquetoast hybrid and electric vehicles, the 2012 Dodge Charger SRT8 comes roaring back to life sporting a honking-big V-8 engine and a serious case of nose-thumbing attitude.

Consider this big family sedan a 21-gun salute to a bygone era when full-size

North American family sedans could be optioned with a surplus of tire-smoking grunt that made its normally buttoned-down drivers smile gleefully from ear to ear while the neighbours simply ran for cover.

The Charger is no anomaly, but part of a family of SRT8-branded vehicles for the 2012 model year that also includes the Chrysler 300, Dodge Challenger and Jeep Grand Cherokee. They form what is one of the widest arrays of all-out performance machinery available anywhere.

Compared to the previous SRT8, this one bares its teeth in a more menacing fashion.

The basic Charger underwent a 2011 refit that gave it a sleeker and more aggressive look, improved road manners and a new base V-6.

The SRT8 expands on this theme.

Needless to say, the $54,000 (estimated) SRT8's performance and creature comforts would amaze its Hemi Charger ancestors.

That a car like this even exists in this day and age is perhaps the most amazing fact of all.

Charger SRT8

What you should know about the 2012 Dodge Charger SRT8:

- Types: Four-door, rear-wheel-drive full-size sedan.
- Engine (hp): 6.4-litre OHV V-8 (470).
- Transmission: Five-speed automatic with paddle shifters.
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy) 15.0/8.0 (est.).
- Price: $54,000 (est.)

By comparison

Ford Taurus SHO

Base price: $49,800
Ford's twin-turbocharged V-6 is 100-plus hp short, but good fuel economy.

Hyundai Genesis R-Spec

Base price: $55,250
All-new 2012 model gives Hyundai its first performance sedan.

Cadillac CTS-V sedan

Base price: $74,300
Impressive 556-hp supercharged V-8 is worth the steep purchase price.

CAR WASH OPTIONS HAVE VARYING GREEN RAMIFICATIONS

AUTO PILOT

Getting your car washed is good. But unfortunately it's not an all-encompassing good.

Water is compromised. Energy is consumed. Chemicals are unleashed. Oily and metal contaminants can end up where they shouldn't. And if someone forgets to close all the car windows before the water starts, there's all that cussing.

We can never stop open-

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE

window dementia, but we can help the planet wince just a bit less, by understanding which are the greener car wash options.

First off, washing vehicles in your driveway may sound green but it's not. In many cities it's even illegal to wash your car with soap, and/or wash a very filthy vehicle. The concern is that your run-off is going to end up — untreated — in a city's storm drain system. Calgary and Toronto have the stiffest fines for washing vehicles in driveways, and it's no coincidence they both rely on nearby water bodies for their drinking water. For that reason both cities heartily recommend that citizens frequent professional car washing establishments for their clean car fixes.

According to Jorge de

Mendonca, of the Canadian Carwash Association, commercial washes have holding tanks designed to contain the worst of the run-off. When full, these tanks are pumped out by appropriately licensed carriers. The semi-treated water is then directed to a municipality's sanitary water system, which includes that crucial stop at a treatment plant.

If you're hell bent on washing your car at home, do it without soap, and/or do it on your lawn, which means no run-off to the storm drain and your grass gets a bit of a drink.

Commercial car washes also tend to use less water than home washes. Self-serve car washes use the least — about 57 litres per wash. In-bay automatic washes, where the car remains stationary, use about 190 to 228 litres. Automatic conveyor touch washes use about 250 litres, while automatic conveyor touches systems use about 324 litres.

Don't forget that some operations also recycle some water, but they're in the minority.

There is a new North American-wide initiative afoot, called Watersavers, which will certify and promote car wash operations that are on the cutting edge of cutting water usage.

"The target is about 40 gallons (150 litres) per wash," says Mendonca.

He adds that 40 gallons is about how much water is used in a typical (human) bath. Now if we could just combine the two — car washing and people washing in one go — then we'd really be getting somewhere.

YOUR KIDS SHOULD BE EMBARRASSED OF YOU, NOT YOUR CAR.

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Looking for a used family hauler that doesn't make a scene, is easy to park, and doesn't burn through fuel like a refinery fire? Skip the rest of this write-up on the Hummer H2.

Launched for the 2003 model year, this Hummer featured 325 horsepower, a gargantuan body, and more off-road hardware than most of its owners would come close to needing. Big, tough and aggressive, the H2 was a fashion statement as much as a rock-crawling weapon.

Look for automatic climate control, power accessories, leather seats, Bose audio, auto-dimming mirrors and plenty more.

2003-10 Hummer H2

Common issues

Ensure your potential H2 tracks straight down the road, as some owners have reported alignment issues evidenced by a "pull" to one side or the other. Cycle the H2 between its two- and four-wheel drive modes as outlined in the owner's manual, ensuring the transfer case shifts properly. Check carpeting thoroughly for signs of moisture, which may be caused by clogged, kinked or leaky sunroof drain hoses. Also ensure that steering-wheel mounted controls for the audio system and cruise control work properly.

Engine

H2's six-litre, 325-horsepower engine was replaced in 2008 with a 6.2-litre unit that cranked out 393 ponies. The four-speed automatic was replaced with a six-speed unit, too.

What owners like

Most owners report that their H2s deliver a smooth and comfortable ride that's also quiet when driven modestly. Interior space and size, functionality, versatility and all-road confidence are other major pluses, alongside a built-in sense of adventure.

What owners dislike

Gripes tend to centre around fuel consumption, parking difficulties, and issues fitting into snug quarters. Some owners wish for more performance from the factory Bose audio system, more in-cabin storage and more thoughtfulness to the ergonomics.

Verdict

A healthy Hummer H2 with a mechanical thumbs-up should prove a unique, flexible family hauler that's big on size and capability.
